About Phin Performing Arts:

Dance and movement are a part of every human's life experience. Dance uplifts, entertains, inspires, grows community spirit, and fosters creativity for everyone. Based in Kijipuktuk/Halifax, Phin Performing Arts is a contemporary dance performance company dedicated to creating moving dance and multi-disciplinary works for the stage, and providing immersive and educational experiences in movement arts.

Since its establishment in 2010, Phin has become an integral part of the Atlantic Canadian dance community, engaging dance, design and production artists, providing professional dance performances and experiences for the community, developing artists' voices and skills, and fostering mental and physical health and an appreciation for the arts through our outreach and education activities.

About Lisa Phinney Langley:

A dancer, choreographer, producer and educator with a background in scientific research, Artistic Director Lisa Phinney Langley's explorations in both the arts and science are driven by a curiosity about the fabric of our existence and the threads that connect our experiences with the natural laws of the universe. Often collaborative and multi-disciplinary, Lisa's work is dynamic, precise, and rich in visual imagery, with undertones in mystery and spirituality. Notable works have explored the environmental pressures threatening the common loon (Analogy for Solid Bones, nominated for the 2010 Nova Scotia Lieutenant Governor's Masterworks Award, and Gavia), quantum physics (Entangled), personal origins (Weissberg 9), and how we come to establish identity (Masquerade).
